

RAND Corporation Live Webinar Announcement

Paid Summer Opportunities at RAND

The RAND Summer Associate Program introduces outstanding doctoral students to the RAND Corporation, an institution that conducts research on a wide range of domestic and international social policy issues and matters of national security. The program offers:

- bi-weekly paycheck to work for a 12-week period
- opportunity to conduct research
- mentorship by an experienced researcher
- a hybrid model including in-person work at one of RAND's offices
- remote flexibility or working fully remote from where you live

Live webinar on Monday, October 30th at 12pm PT/3pm ET

If you would like to learn more about the program, eligibility requirements, the application process, what it looks like to participate in a hybrid model, what kind of projects you might work on, and more, please join us!
