

KORENMAN LECTURE

MEASURING

ELECTORAL SUCCESS:

GENDER AND INTERSECTIONAL
DYNAMICS IN POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS

KELLY DITTMAR

Assistant Professor of Political Science, Rutgers University-Camden, and Scholar at the Center for American Women and Politics (CAWP), Eagleton Institute of Politics

TUESDAY, MARCH 10

4 p.m., Albin O. Kuhn Library Gallery

The electoral gains for women in the 2018 election were notable, but that numeric progress was not felt by all women nor did it yield gender parity in American politics. Beyond the numbers, measuring success in U.S. elections means considering the ways in which gender and intersectional dynamics that have created obstacles to women candidates are disrupted.

Book signing and reception to follow.

UMBC

Sponsored by the Department of Gender, Women's, + Sexuality Studies; Department of History; Department of Political Science; and the Women's Center.

UMBC is committed to creating an accessible and inclusive environment for all faculty, staff, students, and visitors. To request accommodations, please contact us at eaever@umbc.edu.