The College of Education is accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and is among the US News and World Report top 40 for online programs. The College has 3,000 enrolled students in bachelor's, master's, Ph.D., Ed.D. and Ed.S. degree programs. In the current academic year the College has active external grants and contracts for over $42.9 million in support of its research and professional service efforts.

The College of Public Health, as part of USF Health, was founded in 1984 and consists of five departments and a faculty of 84 scholars, professionals and leaders serving the educational needs of over 2,000 students in bachelor's masters and doctoral degree programs. Our faculty engage in a diverse portfolio of active research and in our community. Interested candidates are encouraged to visit our College website for greater details at <http://health.usf.edu/publichealth/>. We are transforming curricula and degree programs at all levels; we are actively engaging in translational research and the translation of that research to practice; and we are committed to public health workforce and systems development, locally and around the world. As part of USF Health, we are leaders in innovative inter-professional education models, community-based service-learning and interdisciplinary research.

The Honors College at the University of South Florida seeks multiple full-time instructors to join a growing, interdisciplinary core faculty. Applicants should be invested in creative pedagogy and curriculum development, and possess a background that demonstrates a commitment to developing leadership talent for the twenty-first century through global education, community engagement, and research. Applicants should have experience teaching high-ability students, and be comfortable working in a liberal arts setting that fosters student engagement both inside and outside the classroom. Terminal degree in hand; demonstrable effectiveness as a teacher at the university level; demonstrable experience with high-ability students; ability to communicate disciplinary interests within a broadly humanistic curriculum; experience with multicultural or global perspectives in course or program development.
