

The 2nd Annual Culturally Responsive Teaching Conference

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Conference Theme: CRT Nuts & Bolts: The Scope and Definition of CRT

“CRT teaches to and through the strengths of the students”

Geneva Gay

At the Community College of Baltimore County our highest concern is for the empowerment, engagement, validation and success of our students. From our vantage point as educators one way that we help stimulate such agency is by setting goals for cultural responsiveness in every component and every level of our educational process. At our first conference on Culturally Responsive Teaching we brought together over 200 educators from various levels of education and shared information and best practices in culturally responsive teaching methods. At our second conference, we hope to continue and broaden that conversation with educators and students.

WORKSHOP SESSION THEMES:

Proposals should relate to themes around culturally responsive teaching. Open to faculty, administrators, staff and graduate students.

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The proposal submission deadline is May 31st
