A Little More About Us

Founded in 2007, Spiros Consulting conducts opposition research, policy work, and general consulting for Democratic candidates and interest groups across the country. We have worked in more than 45 states on races for President, Governor, Senate, Congress, Attorney General, Mayor, and numerous independent expenditures, including on one of Politico's "Top 10 political upsets" and one The Hill's "greatest upsets of the last decade." National Journal called our work the "most damaging early oppo hit" for the first half of 2014. The New York Times' Jonathan Martin noted our work and asked "has any statewide candidate been so eviscerated out of box by separate oppo hits...?" and The New York Times' Maggie Haberman noted our "aggressive fact-checking" during the 2016 Presidential primary.

From our work for President Joe Biden, to Senators Raphael Warnock and Jon Ossoff, and on down the ballot, Spiros has been proud to be part of the fight to retake the White House, Senate, and House. In recent cycles, we've helped elect two U.S. Senators, three governors in contested states, and 16 new members of Congress, while helping more than two dozen House incumbents win re-election. We've worked for additional Senate nominees in Iowa, Georgia, Alaska, and Kansas, and assisted numerous additional presidential candidates including Senator Bernie Sanders. We helped stop a Trump cabinet nominee, won Attorneys General seats in Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, and Pennsylvania, and picked up multiple State Supreme Court seats.

In addition to opposition research, we have written and developed more than 100 policy proposals for candidates around the country, leading to positive press and strong contrasts with opponents. On the interest group side, Spiros did work for the DGA, DCCC, House Majority PAC, Equality PAC, No Labels Action, Swing Left, Our Revolution, and more.
