

The Diane M. Lee Teaching Award 2022-2023

The Diane M. Lee Teaching Award is conferred annually for a term of one year upon a UMBC faculty or staff member.

App. due: Wed, March 30, 2022

The Diane M. Lee Endowment for First-Year Experience was created to support and recognize instructional faculty and staff for their work with students during their year of transition to UMBC. The goal of the Teaching Award is to assist the award recipients in their ongoing work with new students with an understanding that they will share their experiences and teaching strategies with others who are also partners in ensuring that new students achieve successful outcomes academically as they engage with opportunities across campus.

The award will allocate a $1,000 stipend to the recipient. Recipients will meet with the donor virtually or in person to discuss their work with new students and will be expected to share their knowledge and expertise with other instructional faculty and staff who want to strengthen their work with new students. This will be done through small group opportunities coordinated by AETP as the office with administrative oversight for many of UMBC's new student academic programs.

Nominees will need to provide:

- A letter of recommendation or self nomination
- A statement about their teaching philosophy
- Additional Information: Provide names and contact information for two student references

Who is eligible to apply?

Those who have facilitated the instructional experiences of FYS, IHU, TRS, and/or FYE courses for students in transition.

- Faculty
- Staff
- Emeritus faculty who participated in these programs are encouraged to apply.
