

Child Developmental Psychology in Granada, Spain

June 3 - June 28, 2019

Dr. David Schultz

COURSE DESCRIPTION

PSYC 200 explores how humans develop from the prenatal period up until puberty. Emphasis is placed upon human social, cognitive, and physical development. Students learn the current state of affairs in America for factors and policies that impact child development, while comparing them to Spain and other western European countries.

PROGRAM DETAILS

The program cost includes:

- » One UMBC course taught by Dr. Schultz (PSYC 200)
- » Waived UMBC tuition
- » Housing in shared apartments
- » Farewell group meal
- » Airport pick-up and drop-off in Granada
- » Guest speakers
- » Cultural Activities & field trips
- » Visits to local preschools
- » International Health Insurance

COST & FINANCIAL AID

- » $ 3,875
- » Some students may be eligible for financial aid. Check with your financial aid advisor.
- » Scholarships may be available. Contact the Study Abroad office for assistance.
- » NOT INCLUDED: international airfare, passport fees, personal spending money

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

- 1 Attend Study Abroad 101
- 2 Schedule Study Abroad Advising Appointment
- 3 Application opens November 1
- 4 Application deadline February 15

INFORMATION SESSIONS

All sessions in Sondheim 402

- » October 25, 2018 at 12:00
- » October 31, 2018 at 12:00
- » February 6, 2019 at 11:00

Email
sao@umbc.edu

Website
studyabroad.umbc.edu

MyUMBC group
my.umbc.edu/groups/studyabroad

 UMBC Study Abroad

 @UMBCStudyAbroad

 umbcstudyabroad