

Discovering the Leader Within

Leadership Workshop for Faculty and Staff

“A leader is one who knows the way, goes the way, and shows the way.”
~ John C. Maxwell

What past participants have said about this program:

“I learned how to be more purposeful about defining my own vision for the work and helping those who report to me do the same.”

“By implementing what I learned, I anticipate that the lab atmosphere will become more congenial and collaborative so that our productivity will increase. By increasing our productivity, we enhance our visibility within the department and the lab will grow.”

“He was affable, inspiring, and clear. His disclosure of being an entrepreneur was pivotal in his message having credibility for me. He truly knows what it’s like to have an idea, a plan, and a team, and to step into the unknown, fail, learn, and do it all over again better.”

Effective leadership is any organization’s most critical competitive advantage. Fundamental to creating and sustaining a healthy and vibrant organization, having effective leaders will drive an organization’s achievement of results.

Knowing “how” to be effective and “being effective” are sometimes two very different things. As Steven Covey says; “To know and not to do, is like not knowing at all.”

In this session, you will gain an understanding of the Leadership Styles Continuum, learning which style is your preference and how to develop action items to enhance your personal leadership development.

You will learn how to:

- Inspire action as a leader.
- Apply the necessary leadership style to be effective.
- Gain followership.
- Use aspects of Kouzes and Posner’s 5 leadership practices and 10 commitments to stretch your leadership abilities.
- Enhance your personal leadership development, motivating you to cultivate and practice your leadership styles.

Wednesday
June 4th, 2014

8:30 am – 12:30 pm

University Center
Room 312

About the Facilitator:

This workshop is facilitated by Gib Mason. Gib has three decades of experience in organizational stewardship and cultural development. He has an extensive history of helping various companies drive rapid growth and instill winning cultures. Gib currently serves as the COO, VP of Finance & Administration and Director for the Center for Leadership and Innovation for UMBC Training Centers.

Register on the web by May 28th at: www.umbc.edu/training

Spaces are limited and pre-registration is required.

UMBC
Training Centers